

HOW TO REACH ZARAGOZA

Via Madrid (Adolfo Suárez Madrid-Barajas Airport)

Zaragoza is well connected to Madrid and Madrid-Barajas Airport by both train and bus.

By train

High-speed and long-distance trains connect Madrid-Puerta de Atocha-Almudena Grandes station with Zaragoza-Delicias station. Services are operated by several companies, including RENFE, iryo, and OUIGO.

Train journeys typically take around 1h30, making this the fastest option.

- Note on getting to Madrid-Puerta de Atocha: Madrid-Puerta de Atocha is a train station, so travelers arriving at Madrid-Barajas Airport will need to take the subway to reach it. Various combinations are possible (none direct), such as Lines C1-C2/C7/C10 or Line 8 + C2/C7/C10, with a travel time of approximately 40 minutes.

By bus

There is also a direct bus connection operated by ALSA from Madrid-Barajas Airport (Terminal T4) to Zaragoza-Delicias bus station. Bus journeys take approximately 3.5 to 4 hours.

Via Barcelona (Barcelona-El Prat Airport)

Zaragoza can also be easily reached from Barcelona by train or bus.

By train

Frequent train services connect Barcelona Sants railway station with Zaragoza-Delicias, which are also operated by RENFE, iryo, and OUIGO. Travel time is 1h30 approximately.

- Note on getting to Barcelona Sants: Barcelona Sants is a train station, so travelers arriving at Barcelona-El Prat Airport (T1) will need to take the R2N suburban train line from the airport to Sants, which takes approximately 20-30 minutes.

By bus

A few direct buses operated by ALSA run from Barcelona-El Prat Airport (Terminal T1) to Zaragoza-Delicias. Bus journeys usually take around 6h30.

Additionally, it is also possible to take a shorter bus from Barcelona Estación Nord to Zaragoza, though reaching this station from the airport requires either a bus or taxi transfer.
